Q: Asterisk/FreePBX a SIP route I have set up a pretty basic Asterisk server with

FreePBX and it appears to be working OK. I am using the autodiscovery feature to register and discover for devices in my home network. A PBX can call a registered device via the standard sip. I can also call registered devices from outside my network (usually elsewhere in the UK) but not from inside the UK. If I call another US or Canadian SIP device, it works fine and I get the recorded message for that device. In this case the recorded message is in English so it works fine. If I call a UK number, I get the recorded message and can hear a dial tone, but it does not record the message. The problem I have is that I can't get a UK number to work. From my research I think it has to do with the routing tables but it could be something else. The device connects fine to the
